

Stacey Saed

Keynote Speaker & Author
Founder of Annestasis

After years working in other fields, I found my true vocation after a divorce while rebuilding my life as a single mother. The desperation at my door was pushing me toward my purpose. That search led me to found Annestasis, where I have guided individuals through the physical and emotional weight of relocation.

I speak to audiences about the hidden psychological landscapes of clutter, drawing from real-world experiences with corporate relocations, senior transitions, and moving trauma. My talks are wake-up calls that help individuals and organizations understand the profound impact of our relationship with stuff.
